- Provide administrative support for various departmental functions, including documentation and report preparation.
- Engage with clients to provide information on available job resources and services.
- Assist in the planning and execution of departmental events and workshops.

Qualifications

- Currently enrolled as a student pursuing a degree in a relevant field such as business, public administration, economics, or a related discipline.
- Strong academic record with a minimum GPA of 3.0.
- Excellent communication and interpersonal skills.
- Strong organizational and time-management skills.
- Ability to handle confidential information with discretion.

Experience

While prior internship or work experience is beneficial, we encourage applications from students who are passionate about contributing to workforce development and employment initiatives.

Skills

- Proficient in Microsoft Office Suite.
- Analytical and research skills.
- Ability to work independently and as part of a collaborative team.
- Detail-oriented and capable of multitasking.
- Knowledge or interest in labor market trends and workforce development.

Job Benefits

- Practical experience in the public sector with a focus on labor and workforce development.
- Networking opportunities with professionals in the field.
- Exposure to various aspects of labor department operations.
